

We're here.

We're

Just like you,

DUO Broadband employees live and work in our local communities. Communities that are resilient, supportive, and resourceful.

More than sixty-five years ago, the telephone cooperative was a local effort to provide a lifeline that connected neighbor to neighbor during easy and challenging times. Today, fiber optic broadband connects hospitals with patients, county and city government with citizens, emergency responders with those in need, employers with employees, schools with students, banks with customers, churches with congregations, and more.

Many of our services also enable respite from the stresses of life. Whether it's face-timing or calling family, streaming an exercise class, binge watching a favorite TV series, or online gaming with friends — you're connected.

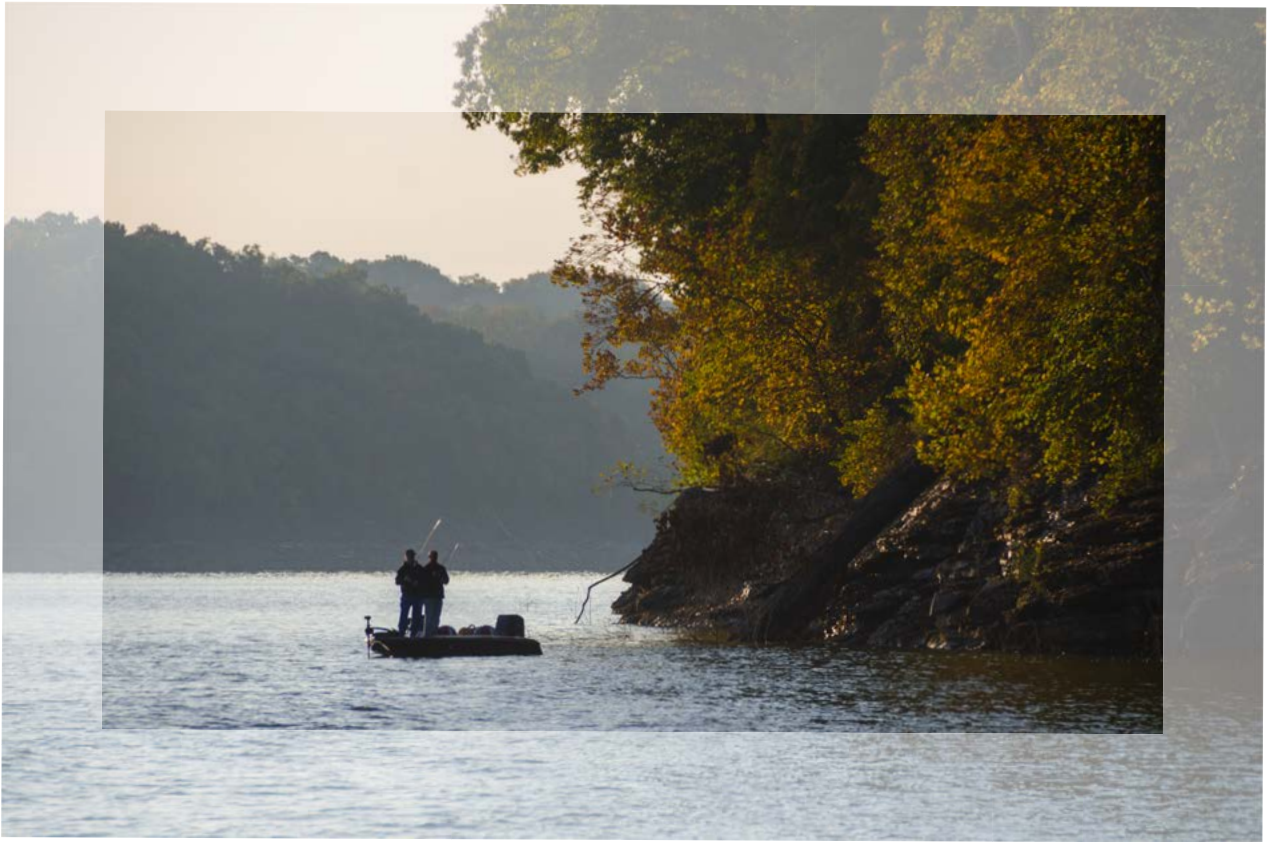

To meet the increasing daily demands and unforeseen spikes, DUO plans for and invests yearly in the communication network that we all depend on.

Here yesterday. Here today. Here tomorrow.

Stay connected,

Thomas E. Preston
